

ENERGY TRADING WEEK AMERICAS

29-30 OCTOBER 2024

Houston Red Oak Ballroom, Texas

OVERVIEW

Now in its 6th year, Energy Trading Week Americas (ETWA) has grown into the only event in the Americas that brings together delegates from across commodity sectors representing the entire trade lifecycle.

What started in 2019 as a niche event focused on risk management has grown into a multi-track event, with in-depth content streams focused on trading, risk, digital transformation, renewable energy & battery storage, and environmental markets. ETWA looks at issues relevant to all energy sectors: economic conditions impacting trade, geopolitical market drivers, risk management tools and tactics, trading digitalization, the regulatory environment, decarbonization efforts and more.

2024 will see a range of exciting new additions allowing the audience to deep dive into topics dramatically changing the world of energy trading – including renewables, storage, optimization, procurement, as well as the traditional themes of digitalization, trading strategies, market analysis, regulations, operations, risk, and the 2nd edition of the Environmental Markets Forum.

And of course, the beating heart of this event is its exhibit floor where dozens of the leading technology, professional services, data, logistics and other companies servicing the energy industry meet and do business. This robust commercial marketplace is underpinned by the industry's leading prospect database, which includes detailed information on purchasing intent, approval authority, budget and many more data points which help our sponsors target their key prospects.

Join more than 1000 of your industry colleagues at ETWA 2024 – the must-attend commercial event of 2024!

WHAT'S NEW?

Markets in Focus Track: We've grown this into a full 2-day track full of in-depth outlooks for major energy commodity groups including crude, refined products, natural gas/LNG, renewables, biofuels, natural gas/LNG, power, renewables and more.

Futures, Derivatives and Hedging: New for 2024, ETWA will have even more insight from regulators, leading attorneys, compliance professionals and trading firms discussing issues including the regulatory environment, enforcement activity, compliance risks and market volatility – and how these conditions impact liquidity and an organization's ability to hedge.

ETOT Americas: With a 15 year history in Europe, 2024 sees the arrival of the Energy Trading Operations and Technology track to The American edition! Covering a wide range of critical themes for technology and back office teams, ranging from post trade optimization, clearing, RPA/AI and much more.

Networking: A deepened program of small group networking opportunities, allowing you to directly engage your absolute highest value prospects over an extended period.

Audience: Continued growth of the core audience from across the Americas energy trading community; and all areas of the trading organization including trading, analysis, technology, data, operations, risk, compliance and more. ETWA 2024 also promises participation from even more companies than ever before, increasing opportunities for our sponsor partners.

Seniority: With elements of the programme and workshops designed to appeal more directly to the C suite, expect a higher number than ever before of strategic leaders from across the trading, producing and procuring community.
